Hi Dove,

Please find attached some information on some surgical masks that my colleague Jason Swann was able to source in China.

Please see the email below.

Mr. Swann is copied in the email below, and is available should you have any questions or require more info.

Hey Jason,

As per our conversation, I am attaching some specifications from a factory our Team in China has audited/vetted and is a decent factory. They have been exporting to EU and US already through exemptions. I have attached their local certifications for within China, and some 3rd party companies in each region regarding test results of their samples. I am told they will have CE certification by April 10th. They are being declared as medical disposable, but the tests meet surgical mask requirements (just awaiting their certifications from CE & FDA to declare it). We will certainly have capacity and quota with them if we are allowed an exemption through Health Canada while they acquire their certifications (we would have to position it as medical disposable; not surgical until they receive their certifications which are in queue with CE and FDA). We can send samples here for our end users to test the validity of it should they require this. Our Team does have a relationship with them, so if approved on our end we can move on these quickly.

Face Mask For Single Use

Thanks,
Swanny
