I've worked on the QA a bit – not fully bilingual but more so than it was. Cecely will be printing soon

My proposed wording around n95s:

To date, we have also ordered more than SEVENTY FIVE (75) MILLION N95 masks—a key piece of protection for health care workers. Delivery of these has already begun – and we expect to have approximately NINE HUNDRED (900) THOUSAND in Canada's possession by the end of the week.

Attaching remarks as well. Sending these into the Dept as well. Please let me know when good to go to the Min.

I've made some changes – also got info back from Dept. no go on talking about Canada Post right now. Also digging into some deliveries, but cutting down the numbers for sure.

FYI, there's a cab discussion right now with Freeland... the gist of which supports the bit below... that we are not confident we have enough or will enough supplies to even meet the needs of front line health workers at this point even with the huge procurement lift underway. Given that some hospitals and health systems are saying they are days away from severe shortages.

Hi all, left some comments in here. My main comment is that I don't think we're going to get away with giving the big order numbers without more evidence of deliveries (which pspc should confirm) or what's been going out to provinces (which is phac).

Maybe she has to bluntly acknowledge that this ordering is only step 1. Step 2 is working major logistics to get supplies here against a difficult global backdrop. And doing that fast enough to be able to backstop the provinces urgent needs.

The tone is “we’re doing a ton of work, but I know we’re nowhere near done, and big challenges remain.”

Also sending these to the dept for fact check and greenlight.
