This is a rly good one and the vote is on Sunday. So Tuesday will be perfect. As you can see below, stickney is "game" 😊

The rapid test distribution numbers fluctuate A LOT and we get them every night but I'll share the latest with you Monday afternoon.

In addition to what you have below (and I will validate what you have).

From Charles (ISED):

My suggestion is a bit different, but given the GM/Unifor agreement that is being announced today (re-starting automotive manufacturing at Oshawa Assembly), PM could use the opportunity to make the connection back to GM's mask manufacturing at Oshawa. Would need an updated number from GM to know how many have now come off the line (recall that they hit 4 million a few weeks) but he could reflect on the good news coming from Oshawa and make the connection to their Made in Canada mask manufacturing.

From PSPC:

The PM may wish to highlight Medicom achieving IO approval.

Hello!

This is what I've sent to our comms shop with the caveat that there may be more & that the numbers may change slightly.

- More than 2.5m rapid test kits have been shipped to P/Ts in the last three weeks (since Oct 21) with millions more on the way in the weeks and months ahead.
- In the last week alone, 3.5M nitrile gloves were shipped and/or are currently being shipped to P/Ts.
- As of XX date, we have received over 1.14B billion items of PPE and other medical supplies since the pandemic began.
 - o This line is from PSPC MINO who said they're updating their web chart tomorrow. We just did some math and came to that number...but may be good to check if possible with officials.

Thanks so much!
