Hi morning,

Just a heads up here from Andre's morning report. China has temporarily suspended cargo flights out of the CargoJet terminal as of midnight tonight, apparently citing congestion reasons. It's not clear whether this impacts scheduled flights or just new ones, and work is being done to figure out what the impact is. We're looking at alternatives – so far the Air Canada terminal doesn't seem affected.

Importance: High

- New High Risk: China has issued a declaration suspending temporary cargo flights out of the Eastern Airlines Terminal (CargoJet terminal) as of 3 Apr (midnight tonight). The suspension is temporary and does not affect PACTL yet but could in coming days(Air Canada terminal).
- Impact is unclear: affects flights that have been approved or new applications only?
- Looking at alternatives this morning. Ex: diverting our scheduled charters to Nanjing Lukou international airport near Shanghai and/or using the second airport that we have selected earlier this week urgently.
- Current estimate to be at UPS warehouse for the 5th to 8th May flights (based on 01 May UPS report, new report should be available today) included below. Work continues to assemble the shipments and initiate the customs process. Some issues are being managed – at this point, no show stoppers other than normal risks plus the new declaration on suspension of temporary cargo flights.
