Yes we can.

Also Ben wants us to highlight that we have a warehouse in China that we have leased to collect and assist with distribution of items.

I'm not sure how we massage this in, but this next flight is chartered out of China but going forward we will be chartering with Cargojet and Air Canada. Give another Canadian angle.

Can we just say items ordered by Quebec, not by the Province of Quebec

This is what's currently in the speech:

At the same time, we're working around the clock to get Canada the resources we need.

In the next 48 hours, we will be receiving a shipment of millions of masks by a chartered cargo flight. We are also working with Provinces to transport their medical supplies when possible. Items ordered by the Province of Quebec will be on this flight. These are vital supplies for people on the frontlines, and are key to fighting this virus.

Does that work?

So we can be vague about the air carrier, but we should highlight the fact we're giving extra space to provinces when we have it and in this case Quebec.

- 1) Bollore's charter Boeing 747- company called Airbridge - Russian owned btw. Leaving Shanghai Sunday arriving Toronto Monday morning - times to be confirmed. Departure of CargoJet fm Vancouver booked for Tue evening back to Hamilton Thursday - Boeing 767. May delay it if the long weekend has resulted in little supplies in warehouse by Tue morning here (Tuesday night in Shanghai). If deliveries pick up, we have Air Canada charters on stand by also and looking at other options
- 2) Yes - 8M surgical masks
- 3) Yes, there are items for Quebec. We did offer extra capacity to them around a week ago.

Hi Team,

A couple things to confirm:

- 1) Which airline is doing the trip tomorrow? Cargojet and departure is in the next two days?
- 2) Is it 8 million surgicals?

- 3) Did we confirm that there are items on the plane for a province? Quebec? I don't think we get into details of what that is.

Thanks!

Matt
