EN:

Whether it's buying PPE, or covering the cost of support workers, many Canadians with disabilities are facing unexpected bills that can be hard to pay.

To help cover these costs, today I can announce that we are introducing a one-time, non-taxable payment of up to $600 for Canadians with disabilities.

And we're not stopping there.

We're also establishing a National Workplace Accessibility Stream, to help people with disabilities find, and keep, a good job.

And we're funding five new projects across the country that will help people get supportive devices to overcome barriers in the workplace.

FR:

Aujourd'hui, j'annonce qu'un paiement unique non imposable de jusqu'à 600 $ sera versé aux personnes handicapées pour les aider à payer leurs dépenses supplémentaires pendant la crise.

On établit également le Volet national pour l'accessibilité en milieu de travail, pour aider les gens à trouver et à garder un bon emploi.

Et on investit dans cinq nouveaux projets à travers le pays qui vont aider les personnes handicapées à surmonter les obstacles en milieu de travail.

Kind Regards,

Marley Lewington
