To whom it may concern

Hello,

I run a small international business services firm in Montreal for corporate and individual projects in Canada. I have business contacts all over the world, including in China.

As my company is an onsite Chinese business, I have been able to secure a supply of millions of masks and other hospital products as well as government and political contacts to avoid delays and diversions.

My supply chain is reliable and fail-safe.

How can we proceed so that you can have these products as quickly as possible to better protect our medical personnel?

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

Yan Gourvès, President
