Hello Cameron,

The backgrounder is mentioning some companies (by names) who have donated, but we don't have the numbers and all the companies' names.

The reason why the numbers and all the companies who have donated are not all included in the NR or BG is that there are many companies who have donated and the numbers are changing and are not always validated through departments. We put examples, but my fear if we mention the list below is that, by mentioning those specifically with the numbers and everything else, other ones who have donated won't receive the same attention.

Maybe this is something that we can maybe highlight more in the speech as examples?

I can still include them in the BG if you want but I might need a more extensive list I think and have validate numbers.

What do you think?

Here is the two part from the BG that we mention companies who donated:

- Canada Goose has committed to re-tooling its manufacturing facilities in Toronto and Winnipeg to produce scrubs and gowns, which it is currently donating.
- Companies like Magna, General Motors, Toyota Motor Manufacturing Canada, Ford, Linamar, Shell, Suncor, and The Home Depot have helped Canada's health care professionals by collecting and donating personal protective and safety equipment and sanitizing supplies for use in hospitals and medical facilities.

Merci,
Valérie

Deagle – Here's the update on where we are:

Home Depot – donated 30k N95 masks this past week

Suncor – donated 50k N95 masks this past week

Apple – donating 100k N95 and 100k surgical (arrival date tbd – and they are nervous about going public until they are on a plane to Canada as things are challenging in their supply chain) – NOT READY

Jack Ma Foundation – donated 500k N95 masks that arrived this week as well as 100k test kits. They have not gone public yet, so confirming with how they want to handle it – DPMO managing this but likely ready by Monday

Bank of China – donation published today on their twitter feed highlighted by Champagne

Cam and I talked about doing this in conjunction with the Bains announcement.

Makes sense to me.

Hi Cam,

I don't think we are ready to build in the donations announcement into the PM's speech tomorrow. Here is the brief background:

Home Depot – donated 30k N95 masks this week

Suncor – donated 50k N95 masks (arrival date tbd)

Apple – donating 100k N95 and 100k surgical (arrival date tbd – and they are nervous about going public until they are on a plane to Canada as things are challenging in their supply chain)

Jack Ma Foundation – donated 500k N95 masks that arrived this week as well as 100k test kits. They have not gone public yet, so confirming with how they want to handle it.

All to say, some good news but not ready for showtime yet.

Matt
