My flag is we don't know if we would need syringes for vaccinations. I would say we are preparing for flu season as it will also hit at the same time as a potential second wave.

Hello!

- Would maybe say we've been working around the clock to secure PPE since the outset of the pandemic, rather than over the last two months
- We've secured almost 40m gloves, rather than over 40m
- Would maybe say a critical part of ensuring we have what we need is by making it here at home, rather than the best way to ensure we have what we need is by making it at home
- We've provided grants rather than contracts to support the development of new testing technologies in Canada
- Would maybe swap sterilization machines for something else
- PSPC confirmed that the contract with Becton Dickson for 37m syringes was just signed which is a critical part of our efforts to secure supplies needed for eventual mass vaccinations if you'd like to include!

- Also, could say that Canada co-founded the Powering Past Coal Alliance & that phasing out coal will not only clean our air but also ensure a healthier economy & competitive advantage for Canada by creating jobs & attracting investment

Good on my end.

Adding Alyx on the Bains industry council – I think their mandate is only to trouble shoot and identify the current/near-term issues facing sectors. It's not to develop solutions. (Alyx, correct me if I am wrong.)
