Thanks Brendan, I appreciate your follow up. I understand that there is a bit of a waiting game. I will push Adrenochrome Labs again with the departmental procurement officials. I am expecting an explanation of expected timelines from them today and I will be sure to share with you once I have it.

This is on the buyandsell website: For frequently asked questions, please see: Q&As relating to COVID-19 Call to Suppliers.

If you need additional help, please contact the National InfoLine at 1-800-811-1148 (Monday to Friday, 8:00am to 5:00pm Eastern) or by email at BPME.OSME@tpsgc-pwgsc.gc.ca.

Thanks again for your patience,

Subject: n95 Mask

Hi Madison,

I would like to further our proposal on surgical masks. We are able to refit the machines we are planning to buy to also manufacture N95 masks. The output is less at 2 million units per machine per month. However given the global demand and skyrocketing price I know this will help Canada greatly in relieving the supply shortage and embargos currently going on. Our goal is to bring manufacturing back to Canada. I am very disheartened this is taking so long to approve as we truly want to do our part in securing Canada's future once this pandemic is over. I truly believe without bringing manufacturing back home to Canada we are leaving ourselves vulnerable to being left behind when it comes to PPE. Looking no further than the USA's ban on sending Canada 3M masks N95 masks. We can fix this by making them right here however we need funding, time is of the essence.

Brendan
