The most significant hold up is delays in getting the supplies delivered to the Shanghai International Airport from the manufacturers, some of whom are asking for payment. GAC is looking at options to help accelerate payment.

Another requirement is obtaining accelerated customs clearance (export permits) which normally takes 24-48 hours, after the goods are physically at the airport, to allow the goods to be loaded and the aircraft to take off.

Another issue involves securing landing permits in China and in Canada.

GAC and our missions in China including HOMs in BEIJING and SHANGHAI are fully engaged to help resolve these issues.

Three flights are currently in play:

Depart	Aircraft and route	Operator	Capacity, booked	Customs deadline	Comment
F001 April 1 0400	Boeing 747 (Shanghai-Moscow-Hamilton)	Air Bridge Cargo (Russia)	capacity 500 cubic meters; 92 cubic meters booked.	March 30 1200 China time
F002 April 1 0805	Boeing 767 (?) (Shanghai-Vancouver-Hamilton)	CargoJet (Canada)	Capacity approx. 300 cu m, little cargo confirmed	March 30 1200 China time

I hear that there are last minute hold ups regarding medical procurement ready to leave from China. Would GAC have any updates on this and what the hold up is? Our side or their side?

Merci!
Pascale
